Case Study – Avon & Somerset Courts, Bristol

Client: Courts Authority
Customer: Lorne Stewart
Products: Inertia Bases and Rubber Bellows

The £45 million project covers two sites, one at Bristol and another at Worle in North Somerset. The Bristol facility forms part of a redevelopment project, which includes a new central bus station and an elevated slab upon which much needed key worker and student accommodation will be developed. This complex includes 11 courtrooms, a probation service suite and office accommodation.

Two further facilities have been constructed at Worle – a five courtroom complex and a separate headquarters building, containing administration and training facilities for the Courts Authority and offices for the probation service.

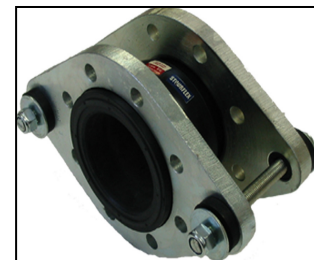

Lorne Stewart are one of the UK's largest building engineering services companies and required inertia bases and rubber bellows to reduce the noise and vibration from the pumps on this prestigious project.

J & P Supplies provided 13 inertia bases and 26 EPDM Rubber Bellows from their Stourflex range.

The Stourflex inertia bases are manufactured from fully welded steel frames with internal reinforcement, and are coated with corrosion resistant epoxy paint finish.

The bellows supplied were fitted with fully threaded tie bars and rubber top hat washers to help protect adjacent pipe work fitted to the pump when installed on inertia bases.

J & P Supplies Ltd provide a complete design service. This includes technical advice, site surveys and after sales support.
